

Valuation Coverage

Your car valuation refers to the estimation of your car value by a registered valuer. The result of such an assessment is usually a written document (appraisal).

The valuation of your car may be necessary when you want to benefit from a more comprehensive coverage.

As a rule, when offering insurance for your car during transport, car shipping companies will consider your car at fair market value. A simple evaluation based on the personal opinion of the car owner is not considered.

In case an official valuation is available, car shipping companies may make arrangements to cover the car up to the new value.

However, each company has its own rules. Make sure that you are well aware of their specific policies.
